GENERAL INFORMATION

- ❖ Petition and Judgment - This kind of case starts with a “petition.” The Petition tells the court what the petitioner wants. It ends with a “judgment,” which is the court’s final decision. The General Judgment is the document that finalizes your case and contains your rights and responsibilities. The terms of the judgment are effective once the court enters the judgment. (See “The Judgment” section for more information and details about the terms of your judgment)

- ❖ Contact Information - Keep the court and all other parties informed of your current address. You don’t have to use your home address. You may use any contact address where you regularly check in, as long as it is in the same state as your home. The court will assume that you receive all notices and documents sent to that address. It is YOUR responsibility to let the court and other parties know if you move or want to get mail at a different address.

- ❖ Paternity (who the father of the child is) must be legally established before you can use these forms.
 - Paternity is established if the father signs and files a Voluntary Acknowledgment of Paternity (a statement that says he is the father) with the State Registrar of Vital Statistics. This is usually signed in the hospital when the child is born.
 - Paternity can also be established through the Oregon Child Support Program (www.oregonchildsupportprogram.gov) or through the courts through a separate procedure. Contact the Oregon Child Support Program or your local court for more information.

- ❖ Co-Parenting Education - Many courts require that parents of minor children go to a court-approved co-parenting class. Some courts will not allow you to finalize your case until you have completed the class and filed a certificate of completion with the court. Contact the court to see if you have to sign up or if the court will send you information after you file.

- ❖ Statutory Restraining Order - Both you and Petitioner must obey a restraining order preventing either of you from making changes to insurance policies without the agreement of the other party if those policies are for the benefit of the children.

The order is effective on both you and Petitioner once you have been served with the Petition. (See Appendix C for the text of the Order) If you violate the order, you may be held in contempt of court and subject to penalties. You may request a hearing if you object to any of the terms in the Statutory Restraining Order. You must fill out and file a Request for Hearing re: Statutory Restraining Order form.

Notice about these instructions and forms

These instructions are not a complete statement of the law. They cover basic procedures for simple cases involving custody, parenting time, and child support. If you have complicated issues or questions about the law, talk to a lawyer.

All of the necessary forms should be online. If you cannot find a form, ask your local court.

Each court has local rules, programs, and procedures that may not be explained in these instructions. Refer to the Supplementary Local Rules for your county. These rules are available online or at your local court or law library. Forms and information about your local court are on the Oregon Judicial Department website.

STEP 1: FILING YOUR RESPONSE

You have 30 days following the date you were served with the Petition to file a written Response with the court clerk and pay the filing fee. See page 9 for fee information.

Counterclaims - In the Response, you can say that you disagree with certain things that the Petitioner has asked for. You can also ask for things that you want the court to order that were not included in the Petition. These are called “counterclaims.”

Filling out the Forms

➤ You are the “Respondent” on ALL forms throughout this case, and the other parent is the “Petitioner.”

- Use full names (first, middle or middle initial, last) and print names the same way on all forms – first, middle, last.

➤ Do not put Social Security numbers on your Response. Social Security numbers must be given to the court but kept confidential from the public and the other parent. Use the “Confidential Information Form” (CIF) to protect your identifying information.

- You must also send a “Notice of Filing of Confidential Information Form” to the petitioner. You can serve this with your other documents. See below for information about service.

Custody and Parenting Time (Visitation)

Read ORS 107.137 to see what a court will consider when awarding custody. The most important factor is always the best interest and welfare of the child.

Custody and Parenting Time

Joint and Sole Custody are legal terms that generally refer to the right to make certain decisions about the child. How much time each parent has with each child (“parenting time”) is controlled by the parenting plan. The court can only award joint custody if both parents agree to all of the terms. In most cases, both parents will have equal rights to information about the child regardless of the type of custody ordered. Both parents will have time with the child unless the court orders otherwise.

Parenting Plans

A parenting plan is required for all cases involving a minor child. The plan sets out the schedule and may include rules for each parent’s time with the child (formerly called “visitation”). If you and Petitioner don’t agree on a parenting plan, the judge will order one. Check your local court’s family law website for sample plans your court may have.

See Appendix A for more information and resources about custody and parenting time.

Note: If Petitioner has marked the box titled “Parental Authority under ORS 107.154” you should read that law closely. If the court awards sole custody to one parent, the other parent has certain rights regarding information about the child. If this box is checked, the petitioner is asking the court to suspend those rights. Talk to a lawyer if this is an issue in your case.

Moving – The Judgment will prohibit either parent from moving more than 60 miles farther away from the other parent without giving written notice to the court and the other parent. Check the Petition to see if the petitioner asked for a waiver of this requirement.

You can ask the judge to waive this rule by checking the appropriate box on the Response and explaining why you should not have to give notice of a move.

CHILD SUPPORT

NOTE: If the petitioner has asked that child support be payable as of the date of service, you are not required to begin making payments until ordered by the court.

Calculating Child Support

In most cases, the court will order child support if no child support order already exists. Go to www.oregonchildsupport.gov/calculator for worksheets and an interactive program to calculate support. Click on this link:

Go to Guidelines Calculator

Worksheets must be submitted to the court before a judgment can be entered. You can submit them with your Response.

❖ NOTE: If you request a child support amount that is different from what the calculator or worksheet says, you must explain why and how you reached that amount. If not, your case may be delayed until you explain the difference.

Payment of Child Support

Support is usually withheld from the payor’s (the person who has to pay) paycheck. The court may allow an exception to the income withholding requirement if you qualify under ORS 25.396 and if you request an exception in the Response. If the court grants an exception to income withholding, payment can be made by direct deposit to the receiver's bank account. If you are paying child support directly to the other parent, you should keep proof of every payment, including a receipt if you pay cash.

Child support is NOT taxable as income or deductible to either party.

Note: support is available to adult children who attend school at least half time. See Appendix B for more information.

Health Insurance

Your judgment must address health insurance for any minor child involved in your case. There are two main categories of health insurance: “private,” which is available through an employer or directly from an insurance carrier, and “public,” such as the Oregon Health Plan, which you have to apply to the state for.

Cash Medical Support

In addition to child support, the court may order “Cash Medical Support.” Cash Medical Support is to help pay for health insurance and out-of-pocket medical expenses.

If neither parent has private health insurance available, the court must order Cash Medical Support unless the judge finds reasons not to. In some situations the judge cannot order Cash Medical Support.

You may also need to complete a Uniform Support Declaration (USD) if you and Petitioner do not agree on an amount of child support (or if you are the one asking for child support). You must file a USD at least 14 days before the hearing and serve a copy to Petitioner. See below for service information.

Tips for filling out the USD:

- ❖ If you are requesting child support for the amount that the Child Support Guidelines recommend, fill out only the Declaration and attach the documents it asks for.
 - If you are requesting a different amount of child support than the Guidelines recommend, fill out both the Declaration
- ❖ Use your actual, present expenses. Estimates are fine as long as they are realistic and you have no way of confirming the amount.
 - Some items may not apply to you – mark those spaces “N/A” (Not Applicable), but complete every item that does apply.
 - If your amounts are unusual or likely to change soon, include a brief explanation of why (if you are temporarily living with a relative, or if one party moved out and is no longer contributing to shared expenses). Include an estimate of what you believe your expenses will be after the situation changes.
- ❖ If you have an expense that is not listed, add it, along with a brief explanation.
- ❖ If you anticipate any major changes (a child entering or leaving school, a layoff, a car payment or mortgage being paid off), note these as well. Do NOT include fears or possibilities – only things you know or reasonably expect will happen.
- ❖ If one of your children has a serious medical problem, note it and include a reasonably accurate estimate of the treatment cost.

- ❖ Household items means things like paper towels, cleaning supplies, light bulbs, storage containers.
- ❖ If you are attending school, include your tuition payments, supplies and books, and any other necessary school-related costs.

The Uniform Support Declaration is Form 8.010.5 and can be found here: <http://courts.oregon.gov/OJD/programs/utcr> in the Appendix of Forms.

Certificate of Mailing – the Uniform Support Declaration includes a Certificate of Mailing at the bottom of the form. Once the USD is completed, copy the entire form and all attachments and mail them to the petitioner. THEN fill out the Certificate of Mailing and file the original with the court. Keep a copy of all documents for your own records.

Life Insurance: The court can order a party to carry life insurance if that party is ordered to pay child support. Life insurance in connection with a support obligation is for the benefit of the child.

Have your documents reviewed

You may want to have your documents reviewed before you file. For information about how to find a lawyer, call the Oregon State Bar at the numbers on Page 2. If you are low-income, you might be able to get your documents reviewed for a smaller fee through the Oregon State Bar's Modest Means program. Your local Legal Aid office might review documents for free if you qualify. Facilitators might also be available for free in your court but you may have to make an appointment. Call your court for information.

Service

Make two copies of all of your completed forms. One for your records and one for Petitioner.

- ❖ If Petitioner does not have a lawyer, mail a copy to Petitioner's address.
- ❖ If Petitioner is represented by a lawyer, you must instead mail the copy to the lawyer.

MAIL the petitioner's copy to the petitioner or the petitioner's lawyer by US mail. THEN fill out the Certificate of Mailing at the bottom of the Response.

File the forms and pay fees

File the original forms listed below with the court clerk. You will have to pay the filing fees when you file your papers. Go to <http://courts.oregon.gov> for the filing fee.

- Response (with Certificate of Mailing completed)
 - Confidential Information Form
 - Notice of Filing of Confidential Information Form
- If you are low income, you may ask the court to defer or waive your filing fee. You must complete an Application and Declaration for Deferral or Waiver of Fees and an Order Regarding Deferral or Waiver of Fees and file them with your papers if you cannot pay the fees. If the fee is waived, you don't have to pay it now. However, the judge may reconsider waived and deferred fees at the end of the case.

Contact Information - Keep the court and all other parties informed of your current address. You don't have to use your home address. You may use any contact address where you regularly check in, as long as it is in the same state as your home. The court will assume that you receive all notices and documents sent to that address. It is YOUR responsibility to let the court and other parties know if you move or want to get mail at a different address.

STEP 2: TEMPORARY ORDERS

You can ask the court to make temporary orders. Temporary orders are effective as soon as a judge signs the order. They last until a judge changes the terms, signs the General Judgment, or dismisses the case. For example, either party may request an order for child support or an order about temporary use of property. To make these requests, you must file a “motion” (request) asking the court to do what you want. You may need a lawyer to file these requests.

- NOTE: The General Judgment may affect earlier temporary orders done by Limited Judgment. Talk to a lawyer if you have questions.

One type of temporary order is called a Status Quo Order. This order prevents either parent from changing the children’s usual schedule, interfering with parenting time by the other parent, or changing where the children live. This does not change custody or say who can make major decisions for the children. “Normal schedule” means the children’s schedule for the three months before the request for a Status Quo Order is filed.

Go to <http://courts.oregon.gov> for the forms to request temporary orders. The forms may not cover all temporary orders you need. Talk to a lawyer for more information. If the petitioner has already filed for or been granted temporary orders, you can request a hearing to challenge or change the orders.

Domestic Violence

All courts have restraining order forms for cases involving domestic violence. A judge will usually hear your request within a day or two of filing. Check with your local court for filing times and procedures.

Refer to <http://courts.oregon.gov/fapa> for Family Abuse Prevention Act (FAPA) forms and information.

Forms for other types of protective order are available at <http://courts.oregon.gov>

STEP 3: RESOLVING YOUR CASE

There are three ways your case can be resolved: by agreement between the parties, by default if you don't respond, or by a judge in a hearing.

By Agreement

It is always better to resolve issues yourselves, since you know what's important to you. If you can't resolve the issues on your own, or if it is not safe for you to communicate with Petitioner, the court may provide options to help you, including mediation. Some courts may require that you mediate before you have a hearing. Check your court's Supplementary Local Rules for more information.

Mediation: A mediator is a person trained to help people resolve disagreements. Mediation is confidential. You may ask to meet with the mediator alone if you are uncomfortable meeting with the other parent for any reason. Check with your local court clerk to see if there is a fee for this service. Mediators are not judges – they cannot impose their decisions on you. Their job is to help you reach an agreement. This is your opportunity to retain control over the outcome of the case. Agreements incorporated into a Judgment are fully enforceable (see below).

If mediation has not yet been ordered in your case and you would like to request it, you may file a Request for Mediation form. You may also request that the court waive mediation requirements if you have a good reason by filing a Motion and Declaration for Waiver of Mediation. Talk to your court if you have safety concerns.

If you and Petitioner have agreed to all of the issues, one of you must fill out and file:

- Declaration in Support of Judgment
- General Judgment of Custody and Parenting Time and Child Support

Note: The Judgment must be signed by both parties before being submitted to the court.

By Default

If you do not respond to the Petition in writing within 30 days of receiving it, the petitioner can get Order of Default. This means that all of the requests in the Petition will be ordered as part of a Judgment without input from you.

If you are on active duty in the military, you may be protected from default judgments by the federal Servicemembers Civil Relief Act (SCRA) (50 U.S.C. App. § 501). The rules about whether you can be protected are very technical and complex. DO NOT rely on your enlistment status to protect you. Speak to a legal advisor or call the state bar association (page 2) if you have concerns or questions.

- If you choose to waive your rights so that Petitioner can get a default judgment, file a waiver of right to stay of proceedings. The courts do not provide a form for this.

By Trial

Conferences with the Judge

Many courts will schedule a “status,” “pretrial,” or “settlement” conference. These meetings usually take place with a judge with both parties present, along with their lawyers (if any). You must attend any conferences that are scheduled unless you have permission from the judge not to attend. At the conference, the judge may talk to you about how the case is going to be handled and whether settlement is possible. The judge may also consider requests for temporary orders or set future court dates.

- Many courts require that you mediate before you can get a hearing. See the Mediation section above in the BY AGREEMENT section.

NOTE: You must give the other party an opportunity to review the judgment before you submit it to the court. See UTCR 5.100 for information.

Trial Guide: The State Family Law Advisory Committee has written a guide that may help you prepare for trial. This guide is NOT a substitute for legal advice! The rules of court can be technical and complex, and you may damage your case if you are not properly informed. If your case goes to trial, you are strongly advised to talk to a lawyer. To read the guide, go to: http://courts.oregon.gov/OJD/docs/OSCA/cpsd/courtimprovement/familylaw/TrialBrochureFINAL1-12-06_000.pdf

THE JUDGMENT

Regardless of how you resolve your case, a General Judgment of Custody and Parenting Time and Child Support must be signed by a judge. One of you may be ordered to fill out the judgment form and give it to the court to be signed.

Even if you submitted Child Support Worksheets with your Response, you MUST attach worksheets to your Judgment if you are responsible for submitting the Judgment form to the court, regardless of how you resolve your case.

The judgment finalizes your case and contains all of the issues decided in the mediation, trial, or by agreement.

- NOTE: The General Judgment may affect earlier temporary orders done by Limited Judgment. Talk to a lawyer if you have questions.

If you are responsible for preparing the Judgment, the information should be exactly the same as what was decided in mediation, arbitration, hearing, trial, or through your agreement. All parties must review the Judgment before you submit it to the court. You must send the Judgment along with the Notice of Proposed Judgment or Order to the petitioner and any adult children who have not filed a waiver of appearance in the case.

Other parties can object to the Judgment. If that happens, you need to discuss the objections and attempt to resolve them before you submit the Judgment to the court. If you are not able to resolve the objections, the objecting parties can either send you a written statement explaining their objections, or they can submit their objections directly to the court. You must complete the Certificate of Readiness section of the Judgment to tell the judge whether there are outstanding objections. See UTCR 5.100\(1\) for more information about notice and objections.¹

If the petitioner is responsible for preparing the judgment, they must send the proposed Judgment to you before submitting it to the court. Then you can review it and object to it within 7 days of the date it was sent to you. You need to try to resolve your objections with the petitioner. If you are not able to resolve your objections after reasonable efforts, you can either send a written explanation of your objections to the petitioner or directly to the court. You must notify the petitioner of your intentions so that they can advise the judge that there are outstanding issues. The judge may make a decision after reviewing the documents, or the court may contact you with further information.

Make a copy for yourself and one for Petitioner. File the original with the court. If your case involves child support, file an extra copy of the judgment with the court.

Your case is finished as of the date the judge signs the Judgment. NOTE: the terms of your judgment are not enforceable until the court enters the judgment. You will know that the court has entered your judgment when you receive a Notice of Entry of Judgment.

NOTE: Every document you file must have a mailing address or contact address where you will receive documents related to this case. You do NOT need to use your home address. You are responsible for checking your contact address. Notify the court and the other party in writing if your contact address changes.

Appendix A- Custody and Parenting Plans

Joint Custody and Sole Custody

What does “Custody” mean?

Custody does not only refer to where the child lives, it refers to who makes major decisions about the child’s residence, health care, education, religion, and other big issues. Joint custody means that the parents have to agree about major decisions in the child’s life. Sole custody means that one parent can make decisions alone. These are legal terms and don’t impact how much time each parent has with the child.

The court can order joint custody only if both parents agree to all of the terms, including the parenting plan.

Regardless of the custody order, both parents will usually have time with the child (parenting time) and the right to certain information. Both parents have the right to review school records and medical records, and to authorize emergency medical, dental, psychological, or other health care if the other parent is not available, unless the court orders otherwise.

Read ORS 107.137 to see what a court will consider when awarding custody. The most important factor is always the best interest and welfare of the child.

A parenting plan is where you provide a plan for when each parent will actually be with the child (parenting time). Parenting time is separate from custody. For example, you can have joint custody with one parent having the child 75% of the time, and you can have sole custody with 50-50 parenting time. See below for more information.

Child support is separate from custody. Either parent can be ordered to pay child support regardless of who has custody or what kind of custody is ordered.

Sole Custody

If sole custody is ordered, the other parent will almost always have some parenting time with the child. The non-custodial parent has equal rights to the child’s school records and medical records, and to authorize emergency medical, dental, psychological, or other health care if the other parent is not available, unless the court orders otherwise.

Joint Custody

Joint custody does not mean that every day-to-day activity has to be agreed to, but major decisions must be discussed by the parties.

A joint custody order can also specify certain decisions that can be made by one parent or the other. For example, Mother may be allowed to make decisions about religious training, or Father can made decisions about medical care.

A joint custody order might specify that one parent’s home is the child’s primary residence, but it’s not required.

Parenting Time & Parenting Plans

Parenting time is what some people call ‘visitation’ – it is the time a child spends with each parent. Parenting time is detailed in a “parenting plan,” which is usually focused on the parent who does not have sole or primary residential custody. Parenting plans can include specific times for contact. For example, Mother can call on Fridays between 7pm and 10pm.”

Once the court enters a judgment with parenting time included, that time is enforceable like any other court order. Parents can file for an expedited (faster) hearing if the other is not following the parenting time in the judgment.

A parenting plan is required for all cases involving a minor child. The plan sets out the schedule and rules for each parent’s time with each child. A parenting plan should be written in the space provided in your Petition or attached to it as a separate form.

A parenting plan can be as general or as specific as you need it to be. The judge will expect to see some information about the days and times when children will be picked up and dropped off, and some plan for weekends, holidays, and school breaks. Consider whether you have children with different needs. Children at different ages may need different parenting plans. If you have a child with a medical issue, you may want to consider how the plan will impact care.

BE AWARE that if you do not include enough information in your plan and the other parent does not respond, you may have to serve the other parent with corrected paperwork before you can get a Judgment.

The parenting plan may include safety provisions for the child if problems like domestic violence, drug or alcohol abuse, or child abuse are involved in your case.

Oregon has a Basic Parenting Plan Guide for Parents. This guide has information about how to develop a plan, information about alternative schedules, and stages of your children’s growth that should be considered when creating a plan. A sample parenting plan is included in the guide. The guide can be downloaded at www.courts.oregon.gov/familylaw. There is also a Safety Focused Parenting Plan Guide on this website. This can help you develop a parenting plan if you have safety concerns for your children. Many local courts also have standard plans in their Supplemental Local Rules. Check your local court’s website. You can use these plans whole or as a guide to develop your own.

A mediator can help you create a parenting plan. A mediator is a neutral person trained to help you come to your own agreement and cannot make decisions for you. Information about mediation and parenting plans may be available through your court's parent education program, the court facilitator, or your local law library. Your local court may also have a mediation program for parents. Some courts require you to try mediation before your hearing.

Custody/Parenting Time Evaluation - If parents can't agree on a parenting plan, the court may order the parents to hire a custody or parenting time evaluator. Either or both parents may be ordered to pay for the evaluator.

If you and Petitioner don't agree on a parenting plan before trial, the judge will order one.

Appendix B - Support for a Child Attending School

If an adult child is attending school at least half-time according to the school's standards, that child is considered a "Child Attending School." A Child Attending School may be entitled to child support until he or she turns 21. "Child Attending School" is defined at ORS 107.108 and does not include children who are married.

IMPORTANT! After an order is made for support of a child attending school, the child must remain enrolled at least half-time AND make sufficient academic progress according to the school to qualify as a child attending school and continue to receive support.

NOTE: you can ask the court to extend child support for minor children to cover them when they qualify as Children Attending School. If a child does not immediately enter higher education after high school or drops out of high school, child support will end.

If you have an order that says support continues if the child becomes a Child Attending School, the child must notify the payor before the child turns 18 that he or she will be attending school, which school, and when the child expects to graduate or stop taking classes. Support generally continues during summers if the child has properly notified the other parent that the child intends to return to school.

The child must also provide consent to the school to release certain information to any parent paying child support. The requirements are at ORS107.108.

Paying Support for a Child Attending School

Support for an adult child is normally paid directly to the child, whether by the payor directly or by the Division of Child Support. If you have good cause why the child should not receive payment, you must explain that in your Petition.

There is NO parenting plan or parenting time credit for a Child Attending School who has graduated from high school.
