

- Accommodate child's schedule: plan hearings around school so that the child may attend.
- 2. Ensure child is present: it is important to have options, and make sure all parties know the expectations. A child may appear in person, via FaceTime, by telephone, or the child may write a letter to the judge.
- 3. Reschedule for unexcused absences: reschedule any hearing where the child is not present and has not been excused by the Court.
- 4. Prepare child in advance: allow CASA, the child's attorney, or a caseworker to speak with the child before entering the courtroom to lessen anxiety.
- 5. Anticipate child-parent interactions: make advance arrangements if the child might be adversely affected by seeing a parent.
- 6. Child engagement: allow the child to appear outside the presence of parents when appropriate. Talk to the child on the record in chambers or in the jury room.
- 7. Do not leave child unattended: ask CASA, the child's attorney, or a caseworker to escort the child out of the courtroom after speaking with the judge.
- 8. Transportation: tell DHS to arrange transportation for the child.
- 9. Make child feel comfortable: have a child-friendly room available in case the hearing doesn't start on time. Once inside the courtroom, introduce the people at counsel table.
- 10. Child comprehension: Make sure the child understands the judge's role. Avoid using legal terms and acronyms.
- 11. Look for the cause of the problem: if a child does not want to attend court, dig a little deeper. What are the reasons and what accommodations can you make?
- 12. Develop guidelines to waive a child's appearance in court: for example, child is in an adoptive placement out of state and is too young to participate by phone, or child is severely disabled and unable to travel to court.
- 13. Make child feel important: issue a special invitation to the child and ask CASA, the child's attorney, or caseworker to deliver the invitation.
