

NINETEENTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT

COLUMBIA COUNTY FAMILY TREATMENT COURT, 230 Strand St., St. Helens, OR 97051

Summary

Columbia County Family Treatment Court (FTC) is a collaborative docket comprised of team members from each partner agency. The current partners are the Judge and assigned court staff from the Columbia County State Courts, Columbia Community Mental Health, Department of Community Justice, Columbia County District Attorney's Office, ODHS Child Welfare, ODHS Self-Sufficiency, Iron Tribe Network, and the Justice Alliance of Columbia County.

The Family Treatment Court was created to provide a structured supervision and treatment program for individuals who are involved in the child welfare and/or juvenile justice system due to their untreated or unmanaged substance use and possible co-occurring mental health concerns. The goal is to help individuals get stable so they can become healthier, reunite their family and be removed from the cycle of active symptomology, crime, child welfare system involvement and justice system involvement.

Assigned members of this team meet regularly to case manage participants and provide accountability, regular services, referral and contact with each participant. The court docket is held regularly, with the ability to schedule appearances as needed to intervene in a timely fashion with participant infractions. The average length of stay in the Family Treatment Court program is 12-24 months but may be as long as 36 months.

Eligibility of your client's referral will be screened by the Family Treatment Court team for case history, and Columbia Community Mental Health for substance use treatment recommendations and eligibility. The Dependency Drug Court team will determine whether a candidate is a good fit for FTC and will be accepted into the program.

Family Treatment Court Program

Overview

The Family Treatment Court Program is a five-phase intervention/treatment program for parents who struggle with substance use and have an open legal case with ODHS Child Welfare. It is a collaborative effort between the Circuit Court, Columbia Community Mental Health, and the Oregon Department of Human Services. By working together as a team, they seek to provide a variety of programs and consistent supervision geared toward supporting and helping you maintain sobriety.

The Family Treatment Court Program involves frequent court appearances, random substance use testing, supervision, groups, individual counseling and accountability. The court awards incentives for positive behavior and may impose sanctions for negative behavior. Participants whom the treatment court team determine have been doing well, either in treatment, the community or their personal life are eligible for incentives which may include movie tickets, gift certificates, sobriety tokens, or a variety of other incentives to be determined by the treatment court team, based upon need and level of accomplishment. Participants who do not comply with the rules may be given sanctions including spending additional time in their current phase of Family Treatment Court. There may also be a variety of other sanctions determined by the Family Treatment Court team. In some circumstances, participants may even be terminated from the program.

All of the staff working with the Family Treatment Court Program will assist you to make sure you understand what is expected of you and will help in any way that they can to make sure that you are able to succeed.

Family Treatment Court

Team Members

The Family Treatment Court Program Judge will make all decisions regarding your participation in the program with input from the treatment court team. In addition to the Judge, the treatment court team consists of members from Columbia Community Mental Health, Oregon Department of Human Services, the local defense consortiums, and volunteers who work together to create a safe and supportive environment for you to succeed. Prior to court hearings, the team members familiarize themselves with your progress so that they may discuss that progress with you during the hearing.

Progress Reports

Before your court hearing, the team will review your activity during the week. The progress report will discuss your UA results, attendance, participation and cooperation in the treatment program, employment or other requirements that may have been imposed. The Judge may ask questions about your progress and discuss any issues you may be having. If you are doing well, you may be rewarded with reduced program requirements or, at times, other incentives like movie tickets, gift cards or other available incentives. If your progress reports show that you are not doing well, the Judge will discuss this with you and determine future action, which could include a treatment response or a sanction in order to help you remember your goals in the program. Treatment responses may include additional groups, increased one-on-one appointments with your counselor or specific treatment work. Sanctions can be anything from increased program requirements to spending more time in your current phase.

Court Hearings

As a participant in the Family Treatment Court Program, you will be required to appear at weekly, bi-weekly or court hearings depending on what phase you are in. Failure to appear will result in sanctions being issued. If you have questions about your court appearances you may contact the Treatment Court Coordinator, treatment provider or your attorney.

Confidentiality

State licensing requires that your identity and privacy be protected. In response to these regulations, The Families Treatment Court Program, its team members and partners have developed policies and procedures that guard your privacy. You will be asked to sign Consent for Disclosure of Confidential Substance Use Information. This disclosure of information is for the sole purpose of hearings and reports concerning your specific ODHS court case. CCMH may require that you sign additional forms relative to your specific case within the treatment court.

Our Goal
