I. INTRODUCTION

The Court invited parties to submit recommendations for the structure and processing of future proceedings related to the Court’s review of the Corrected Findings of Fact and Order of Determination (the “Determination”) in this case. See Case Management Order #7. The claimants identified in the caption of this pleading (the “Claimants”) submit these recommendations in response to the Court’s invitation. The Claimants recommend that the Court adopt a structure and process for future proceedings that expedite the issuance of a partial decree applicable to certain, similarly situated claimants. Issuance of a partial decree would be consistent with the Court’s limited role in reviewing the Determination, promote finality and effectuate settlements between parties, allow for the efficient resolution of the

1 issues raised in exceptions, and allow for the more efficient use of water, without causing 2 injury to other claimants.<sup>1</sup> Alternatively, the Claimants request confirmation from the Court
3 that those Partial Orders of Determination that were not specifically identified in exceptions
4 will not be altered through the Court’s resolution of exceptions. That is, the nature and scope
5 of the water use approved in such Partial Orders of Determination will not be altered as a 6 result of the Court’s resolution of exceptions filed to the Determination, provided that the 7 Partial Orders of Determination were not specifically identified in an exception.

8 II. DISCUSSION

9 Water rights in the Klamath Basin have been in a state of uncertainty for decades. As 10 the Court knows, the Klamath River Basin General Stream Adjudication (the “Adjudication”)
11 was initiated in 1975, and the administrative phase of the Adjudication concluded on March 12 7, 2013. Certain parties to the Adjudication have predicted that the Court’s review of the 13 Determination could last for many more years. The Claimants hope these predictions are 14 wrong. But regardless of the length of time necessary for the Court to complete its review of 15 the exceptions and to resolve the issues raised therein, the Court has an opportunity to move 16 the resolution of certain claims closer to finality with a partial decree. The process necessary 17 to identify those claims that could be included in a partial decree would be minimal and 18 would not need to delay the review and resolution of the remaining claims. As such, the 19 holders of claims not included within the partial decree would not be adversely affected by 20 the issuance of a partial decree.

21 The claims held by the Claimants are representative of the types of claims the Court
22 should include in a partial decree. These claims are similar in the following key respects: (1) 23 no exceptions were filed to any of the Partial Orders of Determination that approved these 24 claims; and (2) the holders of these claims (i.e., the Claimants) did not file any exceptions.

25 <sup>1</sup> This recommendation to issue a partial decree is consistent with the recommendation submitted by Stoel Rives 26 LLP to the Court in a June 21, 2013 letter after the initial Case Management Conference.

1 This means the Claimants have not challenged the nature or scope of the water use approved 2 in the Partial Orders of Determination that arose out of their claims, and no other party has 3 specifically challenged the nature or scope of the water use approved in those Partial Orders
4 of Determination. In short, no party has asked the Court to review any of the Partial Orders
5 of Determination that approved the Claimants' claims. Therefore, with respect to these 6 claims, the only action left to be taken by the Court is the entry of a decree.

7 The Claimants recommend that the Court issue a partial decree<sup>2</sup> to evidence the final 8 resolution of the claims held by the Claimants and other, similarly situated claimants.
9 Alternatively, the Claimants request the Court to confirm that its resolution of the exceptions 10 will not affect the nature or scope of the water use approved in the Partial Orders of 11 Determination that were not specifically identified in exceptions.

12 A. The Claimants recommend that the Court issue a partial decree.

13 The Claimants believe that the issuance of a partial decree would (1) be consistent 14 with the Court's limited role in reviewing the Determination, (2) promote finality and 15 effectuate settlements between parties, (3) allow for the efficient resolution of the issues 16 raised in exceptions, and (4) allow for more efficient use of water, without causing injury to 17 other claimants. For these reasons, the Claimants recommend the Court issue a partial decree 18 that applies to those Partial Orders of Determination to which no specific exceptions were 19 filed, provided that the holders of such claims did not file exceptions.<sup>3</sup> The possibility that an 20 exception to other Partial Orders of Determination could indirectly affect Partial Orders of 21 Determination to which no specific exceptions were filed (as discussed in Section II.B

24 <sup>2</sup> The exact title of the decree (e.g., "partial decree," "initial decree," etc.) is not important to the Claimants. If 25 the Court issues such a decree, the Claimants recommend that the decree specifically state that it is "a court 26 decree" that establishes water uses. See ORS 540.505(4)(a) (defining "water use subject to transfer" to include
"a water use established by . . . [a]n adjudication under ORS chapter 539 as evidenced by a court decree").

<sup>3</sup> The Claimants believe inclusion in a partial decree should not be mandatory, which would allow claimants to opt out if they preferred to wait to be included in the Court's final decree.

1 below) should not preclude the Court from including the latter group of Partial Orders of 2 Determination in a partial decree.

3         The legislature created a limited role for circuit courts in reviewing orders of 4 determination in water right adjudications and intended that the process of filing exceptions 5 would define the scope of such review. The text and context of ORS 539.150 reflect the 6 legislature’s intent to limit the scope of the Court’s review to specific issues raised in 7 exceptions. ORS 539.150(3) provides: “If no exceptions are filed the court shall . . . enter a
8 judgment affirming the determination of the Water Resources Director.” (Emphasis added.)
9 As such, the court lacks authority to modify an order of determination, unless exceptions are 10 filed to the determination. This suggests that the court’s role is not to engage in an 11 independent review of the entire determination to identify whether it contains any errors.
12 Rather, the court’s role is to resolve specific issues raised by the parties to the adjudication, 13 as evidenced by the exceptions filed by those parties. Here, the Court’s limited role in 14 reviewing the Determination supports issuance of a partial decree that applies to claims to 15 which no specific exceptions were filed because no issues have been raised that require 16 resolution by the Court.

17         The issuance of a partial decree would promote finality and effectuate settlements 18 between parties. As noted above, the Adjudication has been ongoing since 1975. The 19 issuance of a partial decree would move many claims toward finality. Moreover, many of 20 the Claimants (and similarly situated parties) invested significant resources into settlement 21 negotiations during the administrative phase of the Adjudication. As a result, many 22 claimants entered settlement agreements with most, if not all, contestants to their claims. For 23 example, the holders of Claim 51 entered settlement agreements with the United States and 24 the Oregon Water Resources Department to resolve all contests to Claim 51 that were not 25 voluntarily withdrawn by other contestants. One of the primary motivations to enter 26 settlement agreements is a desire for finality. The issuance of the partial decree would

1 effectuate these settlements and might create incentives for other parties to enter settlement
2 agreements during the judicial phase of the Adjudication to resolve exceptions.

3       The issuance of a partial decree would promote the efficient resolution of the 4 remaining claims by reducing the number of claims at issue in the judicial phase of the 5 Adjudication. This would allow the Court to focus its review on a limited number of claims, 6 without the need for involvement from all parties to the Adjudication. Apart from the 7 minimal process necessary to issue a partial decree, the remaining structure and process for 8 the judicial phase of the Adjudication could be designed around a more limited group of 9 parties (i.e., those not included in the partial decree).

10       The issuance of a partial decree would allow the holders of claims included within the 11 partial decree to engage in efficient transfers of water rights. Until the court issues a decree, 12 the water use approved in the Partial Orders of Determination are not subject to transfer. See 13 ORS 540.505(4). This means that the holders of such claims cannot change the point of 14 diversion, place of use, or character of use until a decree is issued evidencing such water use.
15 See ORS 540.510(1). Given the scarcity of water within the Klamath Basin, the ability of 16 water right holders to transfer water rights can ensure that scarce supplies of water are used
17 efficiently. The issuance of a partial decree would allow the holders of the claims included 18 in the partial decree to engage in such transfers, subject to existing statutes and rules.

19 B. In the Alternative, the Claimants recommend the Court confirm that the judicial 20 phase of the Adjudication will not affect Partial Orders of Determination to which no specific exceptions were filed.

21       The Claimants request confirmation from the Court that those Partial Orders of 22 Determination that were not specifically identified in exceptions will not be affected by the 23 Court's resolution of exceptions during the judicial phase of the Adjudication. The 24 Claimants acknowledge that some of the exceptions to specific Partial Orders of 25 Determination also challenged the general conclusions of law on which those Partial Orders 26 of Determination relied. The general conclusions of law are set forth in Section B of the

1 Determination (the “General Conclusions”) and are incorporated by reference into many of 2 the Partial Orders of Determination, including some of the Partial Orders of Determination
3 that approved claims held by the Claimants. As such, every modification to the General
4 Conclusions has the potential to indirectly affect each of the Partial Orders of Determination 5 that incorporates those conclusions.

6 For example, a number of the Partial Orders of Determination that approved the 7 claims held by the Claimants incorporate the “General Conclusions of Law Concerning 8 Walton Claims.” None of these Partial Orders of Determination were specifically challenged
9 in exceptions. However, the Klamath Project Water Users filed an exception to another 10 Partial Order of Determination and, in that exception, also challenged certain aspects of the 11 General Conclusions of Law Concerning Walton Claims.<sup>4</sup> The Claimants understand that 12 this exception was intended to challenge only the specific Partial Order of Determination 13 identified in the exception and was not intended to function as a blanket challenge to all 14 Partial Orders of Determination that incorporate the General Conclusions of Law Concerning 15 Walton Claims.

16 Given this context, the Claimants recommend that the Court structure its review and 17 resolution of the exceptions in a way that does not affect the Partial Orders of Determination 18 to which no specific exceptions were filed. The limited scope of the Court’s review under 19 ORS 539.150, as described in Section II.A above, supports such a structure. The Court could 20 limit the scope of its review by interpreting the relevant exceptions as challenging the 21 General Conclusions as applied to the specific Partial Orders of Determination identified in 22 those exceptions, rather than as blanket challenges to every Partial Order of Determination 23 that incorporates by reference portions of the General Conclusions. This would promote

26 <sup>4</sup> See Statement of Exceptions of Klamath Project Water Users to Amended and Corrected Findings of Fact and Order of Determination in the Klamath Basin Adjudication; Exceptions to Partial Order of Determination
Concerning Water Right Claim or Claims Number 279, Case No. WA1300001 (Oct. 15, 2014).

1 finality for a significant number of claims and avoid unraveling many carefully negotiated
2 settlement agreements reached during the administrative phase of the Adjudication.

3 Moreover, the Claimants believe that this approach would be consistent with the 4 intent of many, if not all, parties that challenged certain aspects of the General Conclusions
5 in their exceptions. The parties had more than 18 months to review the Determination, 6 including each of the Partial Orders of Determination. As such, the parties had sufficient 7 time to identify the Partial Orders of Determination that they intended to challenge and 8 should not be allowed to rely on a general exception to the General Conclusions as a means
9 to challenge every Partial Order of Determination that incorporates those General 10 Conclusions, unless the exception specifically identified each of the Partial Orders of 11 Determination being challenged.

12 III. CONCLUSION

13 For the reasons set forth above, the Claimants recommend that the Court adopt a 14 structure and process for the judicial phase of the Adjudication under which the Court would 15 issue a partial decree before resolving the exceptions. In the alternative, the Claimants 16 request the Court to confirm that Partial Orders of Determination to which no specific 17 exceptions were filed will not be altered during the judicial phase of the Adjudication.

18 If the Court will not provide such confirmation, the Claimants believe it could be 19 interpreted that each exception that challenges one or more of the General Conclusions 20 functions as an exception to each of the Partial Orders of Determination that incorporates by 21 reference the challenged General Conclusion(s). If so, it would follow that the holder of each 22 claim that could be indirectly affected by the Court's resolution of the exceptions be allowed

1 to protect their interest in the resolution of such exceptions, regardless of whether the holder
