

8 Step Roadmap to Dissolution (Divorce)

This roadmap is a guide to aid in completing the paperwork for dissolution of marriage or registered domestic partnership (RDP). By following this step-by-step roadmap, you can more effectively navigate the court system to reach a judgment in your case. The legal process is complicated. If you need advice about your case, you will need to ask a lawyer. Court staff cannot give legal advice. This roadmap is designed for the person who started the case (Petitioner).

Two different types of trials are available in the Lane County Circuit Court for resolving domestic relations cases. The two types are called Informal Domestic Relations Trial (IDRT) and Traditional Trial. You will need to choose the type of trial that you think is best for your case. The Court's docketing department will send a letter about setting a trial. This letter includes the information and forms necessary to select the trial type.

The Court's docketing department will send trial notice by mail. The Court offers a pamphlet about how to prepare and what to expect at trial. Domestic relations cases are set within six months from the date the petition or show cause is being filed. If child custody and parenting time are not resolved, the parties must attend mediation orientation. It may be possible to settle issues in mediation and avoid having the court impose a parenting plan. If other issues such as division of property, debts, retirement, or support remain unresolved then the case will continue to trial.
