

Legal Representation Resources for Personal Income Tax Cases

The organizations listed below may provide or coordinate free or reduced-fee legal assistance for taxpayers who meet criteria set by the organizations. The court recognizes that effective legal assistance can help to resolve many cases more quickly and efficiently, including through settlement where appropriate. For that reason, the Oregon Tax Court provides the names and contact information below as a starting point for taxpayers. The court does not endorse or recommend any specific organization.

If you intend to contact one of the following organizations for help with your case, you should do so as soon as possible. If you delay in contacting an organization, it may be more difficult for the organization to help you or for you to properly prepare your case.

If you contact a clinic, a determination will be made whether you are eligible for the clinic's services and would benefit from legal representation. If the clinic agrees to represent you, it will advise you on the merits of your case, and, where appropriate, represent you in resolving your case by settlement or trial.

In addition, the Oregon State Bar offers a legal referral service. Participating lawyers agree to provide a short initial consultation for a modest fee. For more information, contact the Bar at <https://www.osbar.org/public/ris/#ris> or 503-684-3763 (or toll-free in Oregon at 800-452-7636).
